No matter why you decided to sext, you probably thought that it would stay private. Now your photo or video is out there. And you don’t know what to do. You may feel like there’s nothing you can do to escape this situation.

But that’s not true!

While you can’t get your image back, you can take steps to:

* Get it removed from websites.
* Help stop it from spreading.
* Get emotional support.
* Deal with bullies.
What if I'm being blackmailed?

Blackmail is when someone tries to threaten or scare you into doing something. For example, teens may share sexual images with people they trust, only to have those people turn on them. They may threaten to send the images to teens’ families unless the teens share more images.

If you’re being blackmailed, you may feel helpless or guilty. You may think you don’t have the right to say “no” because you shared the first image willingly.

WRONG! Blackmail is illegal and you don’t have to take it.

YOU SHOULD:

• Stop any communications with blackmailers. They’ll try to use your conversations to threaten and manipulate you – don’t give them the chance. Even if you have already started communicating with them, it’s never too late to stop and report it.

• Block or remove the blackmailer from your contact list. If you decide to deactivate your accounts, contact the websites/apps for help.

• Make a report to the police and CyberTipline.org right away. Seriously. They can help. They may want to see any messages you’ve received from the blackmailer.

• To the website or app.
  Trustworthy websites/apps work hard to keep off sexual images of minors and will remove them if notified. You can also report anyone who is posting or sharing images of you. For more information about reporting to popular websites/apps, visit https://needhelpnow.ca/removing_pictures.

• To CyberTipline.org.
  This tipline can connect you with the experts best suited to work on your case. They may contact the website or the police, or reach out to you for more details. You can report without sharing your name and can even make a report for a friend if they need help.

• To the police.
  They can help stop your image from spreading by working with websites/apps and talking to the people sharing it. You should know if the police get involved, you could face some consequences, too. It’s illegal to share sexual images of minors even if they are of you. You may not be charged with a crime, but you may have to attend classes or complete community service.

• To a teacher.
  If your pictures are being shared around school, your teachers and school administrators can help stop it by making clear there are consequences for sharing them.

DON’T GIVE UP

Having a nude or sexual image of yourself floating around is scary. It can make you feel vulnerable and isolated. But remember, other teens have been in the same situation you are – and they have beaten it.

The people who have taken advantage of you want you to feel powerless. But you are not powerless. You are strong. You can take charge of your situation and take back control of your life.
